J. L. Allison (Sept. 1907), Flight Sub-Lieut., H.M.S. No. 3 Naval Squadron, attached 10th wing R.F.C. Reported missing after an offensive patrol; killed on the same date according to German newspapers. His Flight Commander wrote:—"Your son was missing on March 18th. He left with four other pilots on an offensive patrol at 10 a.m., and an hour later met the enemy scouts. A fierce fight resulted, in which our boys brought down two enemy machines. This occurred some distance behind the lines, and all the combatants were so interested that they were unable to watch one another. It was only when they finally assembled that your son was noticed to be missing. Nothing more is known by the boys who were with him. . . . I am so sorry your son did not remain with us for he was a wonderful flyer and had proved himself to be a very brave and efficient war pilot during the enemy offensive in the Somme Battle, March, 1918."

J. W. Alston (Sept. 1907), Corporal, Queen's Westminsters. Went to France early in 1916 with the Machine Gun Coy. After a few months went to Salonika and remained there until the Armistice.

O. Anderton (April 1904), Corporal, 9th Detachment Canadian Ordnance Corps. Enlisted July, 1915 in Fort Garry Horse, afterwards transferred to Ordnance Corps and put on draft for Siberia, which was cancelled at Armistice.

J. W. Andrews (May, 1913), Pte., Inns of Court O.T.C. Enlisted in Inns of Court O.T.C., and was sent to Berkhamstead with mounted detachment 5th Cavalry Reserve, and while here met with an accident which proved fatal. When the accident occurred he was holding two horses. One of them, before he was aware, bit the one in front which lashed out and kicked him. He underwent a serious operation the following day, but peritonitis had set in and he passed away the next day, 11-30, Sept. 29th, 1917. He was admired by all his comrades in the army and many letters were written by them to Mrs. Andrews. His Captain wrote:—"Your son laid down his life for his country just as much as if he had fallen in France, and whatever yearnings he may leave behind, he at least is supremely and eternally happy." A chum of his wrote:—"He was admired for the matter of course way in which he knelt to pray, and went to Communion every Sunday, although it often meant missing breakfast after being on duty all night." He was just about to enter an Officer's Cadet Batt. when the fatal accident occurred.

were reached, a mine shaft was discovered in which an engine was heard, and in which several Germans were working, or had taken shelter during the Artillery fire. Sergeant Lloyd placed a large portable charge of explosives at the head of the shaft and, despite the danger which he knew he must incur, he lit the fuse and then sought to escape. But the terrific upheaval which followed was not only the explosion of the charge, but of the German mine itself, in which evidently a great quantity of explosives had already been placed. Masses of earth, some of which must have weighed several tons, were thrown into the air. The gallant Sergeant was unfortunately buried beneath this avalanche, but the German front line at that point was blown to pieces and many of the enemy were killed."

The following extracts represent very few of them. Lt.-Col. Mills, D.S.O. (his C.O.) wrote:—

".....We have lost a true friend and one of the bravest soldiers in the Army. He died as he would have wished, like a true soldier, fighting to the end." Major E.H. Evans wrote:—"....George and I were very great friends. We had so many ideals in common, and had worked together for so long and so closely that I had come to regard him as a younger brother. We were working and fighting together on the morning of the 6th, till within half-an-hour of his death. He was doing splendid work, better even than he had done before, and more than that one cannot say. ....Had he lived he would assuredly have received a decoration for his gallantry and good work, and I enclose a note I had written to the C.O. (recommending him for a decoration) just before his death. There is not an officer or man in the Battalion who would not have willingly risked his life to have saved him. ....To those of us who knew him best the loss is greatest. ...." Major Roberts wrote:—".....Words cannot express my grief over the loss of as brave a soldier and as true a friend as any man ever had. I trust you will accept my deep sympathy as a family in your great sorrow—the loss of one of the finest and best fellows that ever lived....." The Chaplain (D. A. Jones, Old Ellesmerian) wrote:—"It is just the simple truth to say that he was the most loved man in our Battalion, and I think one of the best soldiers in the Army....."

He was leading them with the greatest gallantry up a sap against the 3rd line German trenches, when in a counter-attack by them, a hostile bomb was seen to explode near him and he fell. No one can regret more than myself this loss to us of an officer, who had every qualification required of a leader of British soldiers and I had especially selected him on account of his great ability to lead the grenadier platoon in action, as it undoubtedly requires the very highest courage and resource to do so successfully." Miss Wilson also had the following from a German woman:—"Much I should like not to bring you such a message, not to give you such a grief. But God's Will must be done. My brother joins with me in this. I have to tell you that Mr. Wilson died a hero's death. He was a gallant officer and understand also that we are not wicked. Williamson writes: "We started off early one morning in the highest of spirits . . . and after a very long march up the seashore past Gaza arrived at the Wadi Hesi just at dusk. We attacked immediately and drove the enemy from his strong position. I then detailed your son to take his guns up to the outpost line and consolidate. The night was dark but he arrived safely and got his guns into position. Just at dawn he found that one was in a list of a trench just over the forward slope of the hill. By this time I had received orders to withdraw all guns to support another attack. This I ordered him to do, and it was during this withdrawal that your son was lost. One man was killed and two wounded, in trying to withdraw the gun, and rather than send any more men to such a dangerous job, your son endeavoured to do so himself and was instantaneously killed by a shot from an orange grove 200 yards away. He cannot have had an instant's pain as he was shot through the head without the slightest disfigurement. I could not realize that he had passed away, he looked so peaceful with his own happy smile on his face. He lies buried beside the men he commanded and loved, within the sound of the sea surf at Wadi Hesi, and near the orange groves of Herbiah."
